Conference Objectives
The National Energy from Waste Symposium aims to:

- Through the involvement of all stakeholders, consider the future of the Australian waste industry
- Provide a platform to encourage networking amongst the waste industry, government and the finance and energy sectors.

Theme
Globally, energy from waste plays an important role in the management of wastes and provision of energy for the community. Australian State Governments are currently researching and preparing policies and guidelines to facilitate the development of clean energy from waste technologies. Clean energy from waste solutions also have the potential to play an important role in the Federal Government direct action plan for climate change and developing a more sustainable community.

This symposium will bring all states together for a national perspective of the governance driving the energy from waste industry in Australia. Attendees will gain an understanding of Federal and State energy from waste policies and guidelines, gaps and synergies as well as opportunities for integrating energy from waste in planning for resource management.

This is an opportunity for the industry to have a voice and contribute to a submission to Federal and State Governments to assist policy makers in the future development of the industry in Australia.

Participants will learn of the latest trends in technology of both large scale and small scale facilities and engage with the investment and energy industry. Case studies and community engagement strategies will provide an insight for the strategies and key factors necessary for implementing energy from waste processing in Australia.

Program
The two-day conference program will include a combination of keynote and platform presentations; as well as facilitated workshops where delegates will have the opportunity to contribute to the development of an industry submission for presentation to the respective State and Federal Government agencies about future opportunities for this rapidly developing industry.

Networking will also be encouraged at the conference dinner on the evening of Day 1, as well as during the tea and lunch breaks.
